AG KIDMIN RELAUNCH KIT

SAFETY

No one wants to be “that church.” You know, the one talked about in the Supermarkets and online as being the church where people went back and everyone got sick. In fact, parents and other attendees may have heightened awareness of sanitation before they arrive at church. There is no better time to review the safety and sanitation processes used by your church, brush up on best practices used by schools and daycares, and schedule a work-day for people to sanitize all toys and surfaces. Perhaps the questions below will help you build a plan for increased care and safety in your church.

Questions

1. What precautions will you take to encourage and promote cleanliness and good healthy practices in your space?
2. How can you communicate your safety and cleanliness standards to families who may be interested in seeing what is happening before they arrive at the church?
3. Who can you partner with from the medical community to advise you regarding the cleanliness and sanitation practices for the next several months?
4. What are your practices and procedures to regularly sanitize hard surfaces and toys in your area?
5. What processes of review are in place to maintain current and adequate safety and protection protocols for every child and adult in your ministry?
6. How are Safety and/or Custodial Teams trained and utilized in your children’s areas?

Ideas

Asking the right questions is only part of the process. It then becomes necessary to generate possible solutions to move forward in God’s plan and timing.

Resources

Nothing is more frustrating than struggling to create something from the ground up not knowing there was a solution ready to go which made the job easier. The resources section may not have all of the solutions you are looking for, but perhaps there is enough there to save you some time and effort in creating the change you are looking for.
